School of International Development and Global Studies Faculty of Social Sciences University of Ottawa

Two Full-Time Faculty Positions (open rank)

The Faculty of Social Sciences comprises nine departments, schools and institutes, which offer undergraduate, Master's and doctoral programs in both English and French. With its 10,000 students, 260 full-time professors, and wide array of programs and research centres, the Faculty of Social Sciences plays a key role at the heart of the University of Ottawa. Its graduate students are supervised by excellent researchers and undertake cutting-edge research in the Faculty's Master's and Ph.D. programs.

The School of International Development and Global Studies was created in 2008. With 17 professors, it is Canada's largest department in the field of international development. The School has over 800 undergraduates and 120 M.A. students. The School has proposed an interdisciplinary Ph.D. program in international development. Located in a G-8 capital, researchers at the School are uniquely placed to interact with NGOs, national and international agencies.

The School of International Development and Global Studies at the University of Ottawa is accepting applications for two (2) tenure-track positions (open-rank). In one of the positions, a suitable candidate may be considered for Director of the School.

Priority will be given to candidates who can demonstrate expertise and a strong research and publication record in the broad area of development and globalization. Expertise in the fields of sustainability and livelihoods; or social policy and poverty would be an asset.
